Bullying continues to have negative impacts on climate and achievement in many schools. To address these negative effects, it is important for all school personnel to learn the dynamics, and causes of bullying, how to effectively intervene in bullying, and how they can play a part in preventing future bullying behaviors in their schools.

In this interactive workshop, participants will explore all facets of the bullying phenomenon - from the negative outcomes that bullying has on schools to specific interventions used in schools, classrooms, and directly with students.

Outcome: Participants will:

- learn to identify bullying behaviors
- understand the attitudes, and conditions that promote bullying
- learn the attributes and characteristics of bullies, targets and the bystanders
- gain skills, strategies and resources for dealing with and reducing bullying behaviors

Research has clearly demonstrated that positive school climates and students' interpersonal, problem-solving, and conflict resolution interactions are the strongest predictors of academic achievement. Consistent with this, many states are now promoting character education programs in our schools, along with the necessary emphasis on academic progress. In this workshop, educators will come to learn that that social skill programs ARE character education programs.

Sex Education / HIV Prevention Curriculum Trainings

Curriculum Trainings

The Arizona Department of Education has assembled a cadre of trainers to provide a one-day, on-site curriculum training for school personnel. Schools can arrange for educators to be trained in either Making A Difference! (grades 6-9) or Reducing the Risk (grades 9-12). Both curricula are research-based and emphasize abstinence, personal-limit setting, and refusal skills. Curricula can be tailored to focus on sex education or HIV prevention. These trainings are designed for educators who have a basic understanding of HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases. There is no cost to the district for the curriculum materials and training, but trainings require a minimum of 10 participants who will implement the curriculum within a year.

For more information about the curricula, access the “Research-Based HIV Prevention Curricula Chart” at <http://www.ade.az.gov/health-safety/health/hiv/>.

To schedule an on-site curriculum training, access the Sex Education/ HIV Prevention Curriculum Training Form at: www.ade.az.gov/health-safety/health/hiv/.

Reducing the Risk

December 2, 2005 (Phoenix)* (This date only-Register at: www.ade.az.gov/online/registration)

Common Ground: Where Youth Development and HIV-Prevention Education Meet

February 9, 2006

Black Canyon Conference Center
9440 N. 25th Avenue
Phoenix, AZ 85021

This training is to help education and health professionals incorporate the tenets of youth development into HIV-prevention programming. Participants in this training discover those aspects of the youth development approach that are effective in reducing sexual risk behaviors, and develop ways in which they can integrate the successful tenets of youth development into their own efforts to prevent HIV, STDs, unintended pregnancy, and other important health issues facing youth. Registration is limited and open to invitation only.

Presenter:

Andrea Smith, SIECUS

“School programs need to recognize the bi-directional connection between health and education. Children must be healthy in order to be educated and children must be educated in order to stay healthy.”

- Public Health Reports

The Principles of Effectiveness

Under Title IV of the No Child Left Behind Act, local prevention programs and activities are required to meet the Principles of Effectiveness. This means that districts must:

Principle 1: Conduct a Needs Assessment

A grant recipient shall base its program on a thorough assessment of objective data regarding: the incidence of violence and illegal drug use in the schools and communities served; and the prevalence of risk factors including child abuse, domestic violence, protective factors, buffers or assets.

Principle 2: Establish Measurable Objectives/Performance Measures

A grant recipient shall establish performance measures targeting safe, orderly and drug-free learning environments.

Principle 3: Effective Scientifically-Based Programs

A grant recipient shall design and implement its activities based on research or evaluation that provides evidence the strategies used prevent or reduce drug use, violence, or disruptive behavior.

Principle 4: Program Evaluation

A grant recipient shall evaluate its program periodically to assess its progress based on outlined performance measures and use its evaluation results to refine, improve, and strengthen its program and to refine the performance measures as appropriate.

Principle 5: Parent Involvement

A grant recipient shall develop and implement the program with meaningful, ongoing consultation with, and input from, parents.

The Principles of Effectiveness were developed in 1997 by the U.S. Department of Education to help teachers, school administrators, and prevention program developers achieve safe learning environments where students are free from fear of violence and the influence of drugs. This is the first time they have been codified by law.
